Diabetes is a disease of the most popular and feared among Malaysians, especially the Malays and Indians. According to the International Diabetes Federation, 3.2 million Malaysians are certified having diabetes in 2014. If we examine the health of the back platform of our ancestors; will we understand that diabetes does not exist in the past. If it does not exist does it mean sugar content in the body of our ancestors are all stable and normal ?. Not! Maybe some of those with high sugar content, but the high sugar content in the body is not known as a disease of the past. Native traditional medicine does not consider the excess sugar in the body as the disease, modern medicine only consider health disorders. If you study the rear platform of your ancestors or relatives of your ancestors, you will not see a cut leg due to diabetes. You will not find in a waste of internal organs due to diabetes.
